

Dock-able Toolbars and Command Lines

A nice feature in Release 6 is that the toolbars and command lines are dock-able and undock-able. This means that any of the toolbars or command lines can be undocked and moved anywhere on your screen. The command lines are also resizable. I find this feature very handy when creating documentation and also when doing any JavaScript in Brio. It allows me to see more than one line at a time.

To undock a toolbar or command line, look for the vertical bar on the left side of the toolbar and double click on it. Now you can drag the toolbar anywhere on the screen that you want. To re-dock the toolbar or command line, double click anywhere on the blue title bar.
